- Throwable Weapons cannot be socketed.
- You can replenish the quantity of Throwable Weapons by repairing them at the Vendors.
- The Barbarian can throw two Throwable weapons at once with his Double Throw skill. He can also use Throwing Mastery to increase the amount of damage and attack when throwing weapons.
- To Throw a Throwing Weapon or Javelin, equip it, then select Throw on the left or right action button.
- Throwable weapons can be used for both their throwing damage, and to make a melee attack. Select Throw to throw the weapon or, Attack to use it as a melee weapon.
- Keep Throwable weapons in your Alternate Weapon slot and use them when ranged attacks are a better and safer option than a melee attack.

Javelins

Javelin class weapons, a shorter version of the spear, are specially weighted and extremely effective as throwing weapons.

Javelins can inflict great damage when thrown; yet they still allow your character to unleash deadly jabs upon any opponents who make the mistake of getting too close. Amazons are renowned for their skill with javelins. The Amazon can throw Poison Javelins and Plague Javelins

Throwing Weapons

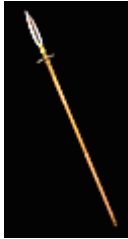

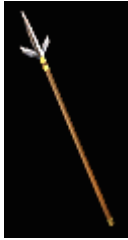

No adventurer interested in self-preservation can deny the peace of mind provided by finely-balanced throwing knives. A quick barrage of knives can inflict great damage, making them unequaled as ranged weapons.

Diablo II: Lord of Destruction Items - Javelins, Throwing, Spears, Polearms

Spears

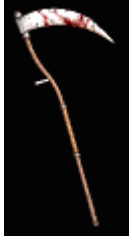

Spears, tridents, and the other longer, two-handed stabbing weapons are designed for attacking enemies from a long distance away. Amazons are renowned for their skill with spears.

Diablo II: Lord of Destruction Items - Javelins, Throwing, Spears, Polearms

Polearms

Larger, heavier, and more cumbersome than even the most massive of axes, the various polearms do incredible amounts of damage in a single blow. Polearms can be unwieldy and so are always held in two hands. They require a great deal of strength as well.
